

Morefield Communications Hires Len White as Vice President of Services

Len brings over 25 years of industry knowledge and skills to Morefield

Camp Hill, PA – Morefield Communications, a full-service technology company, announced it has hired Len White, former Director of WellSpan Health, as the company’s new Vice President of Services. White brings over 25 years of experience and leadership to Morefield. He has a strong track record of enterprise project management with a comprehensive focus on IT planning and communications.

“Morefield’s service-oriented team and collaborative culture are truly remarkable,” said White, “I’m eager to use my experience to further enhance the customer experience.” In addition to ensuring high quality service delivery and operational efficiency, White will serve on the company’s executive team and report to Morefield’s President, Wes Kelly.

“We are thrilled to have Len join the Morefield team,” remarked Kelly. “Len is an accomplished leader with a track record of improvement and consistency through operations. He brings a deep blend of solution provider experience and knows what it takes to deliver client success. His expertise will play a critical role as we continue our intense focus on delivering excellence and outstanding customer service.”

Prior to joining Morefield, White was the Director of Network and Telecommunication Services at WellSpan Health. While at WellSpan, he was responsible for the Network Services, Telecommunication, and Telemedicine Technology teams. The teams provided all design, planning, integration, and support services for approximately 200 physical locations, 7 hospitals and multiple data centers.

“I appreciate the opportunity and confidence placed in me by Morefield’s Leadership Team,” White graciously remarks, “I’m excited to hit the ground running and continue to develop the team and grow the company.”
